"All Is Not Gold That Glitters."

It takes steady, persistent endeavor to win the best prizes of life. Occasionally an accident favors some one, but most of us get what we want by keeping everlastingly at it. You may be the favored one of many thousands to win a glittering prize, but most real gold is secured through hardship or labor from dirt and rock.

If you want to make money, or if you want something that money will buy, study this page, put YOUR brains to work, and see what you can make out of an Ad here. The Washington Herald is read daily by about 150,000 persons. Among this great number are some who will assist you to obtain what you desire because of the consequent benefit to them-just as you would answer an Ad in which you were interested. An evidence of the REAL popularity of The Washington Herald is the fact that it now has the largest daily circulation ever attained by a morning newspaper in this city, and has now over 10,000 more daily circulation than its only morning contemporary.
